

Andrew Thompson is among the most inspiring men of early colonial Australia

Born in rural Scotland in 1773, Andrew was transported to New South Wales aged 18 on an uncertain stealing charge and became one of the richest and most successful men in colonial Australia. As a police Chief Constable he gained prominence through his honesty, leadership and industry, and was appointed to official posts by Governors Hunter, King, Bligh and Macquarie.

He build a vast business empire despite opposition from the all-powerful NSW Corps and John Macarthur. Thompson was the first ex-convict to be made a Chief Magistrate. He became a friend of Governor Maquarie, to whom he bequeathed part of his estate.

Loved by the Hawkesbury settlers and honoured by Governors, Andrew Thompson gained more fame and fortune in New South Wales than he could ever have hoped for in his native land.

The Legacy of Andrew Thompson

Andrew Thompson achieved a remarkable amount in his short time in NSW.

Tonight I will focus on several crucial parts of his short life:

- the reasons for his transportation to New South Wales
- his achievements and responsibilities in the colony
- the importance of his contributions to the district

Why was Andrew Thompson sent to NSW?

The Pitt transported 368 convicts to NSW on the voyage 17 Jul 1791 to 14 Feb 1792

Thompson's transportation

- Although Macquarie proclaimed Thompson The Father of Windsor, it is important to remember he did not come willingly to this land.
- Raised in a respected textile family in the Scottish village of Yetholm, he was educated to be a customs officer and apprenticed as a weaver.
- In Aug 1790 he was charged with stealing from his brother William and a local merchant – the older ‘accomplice’ Aitkin fled to England.
- Andrew was advised by Judge Lord Hailes to plead guilty at the Jedburgh Assizes, and then sentences him to 14 years transportation.
- In 1791 he is transported on the Pitt to NSW, aged 18, with 46 other Scottish convicts. The voyage encounters many difficulties, and the boy convict becomes known to Grose, Foveaux, Hunter and Bligh.

Why was Thompson so successful?

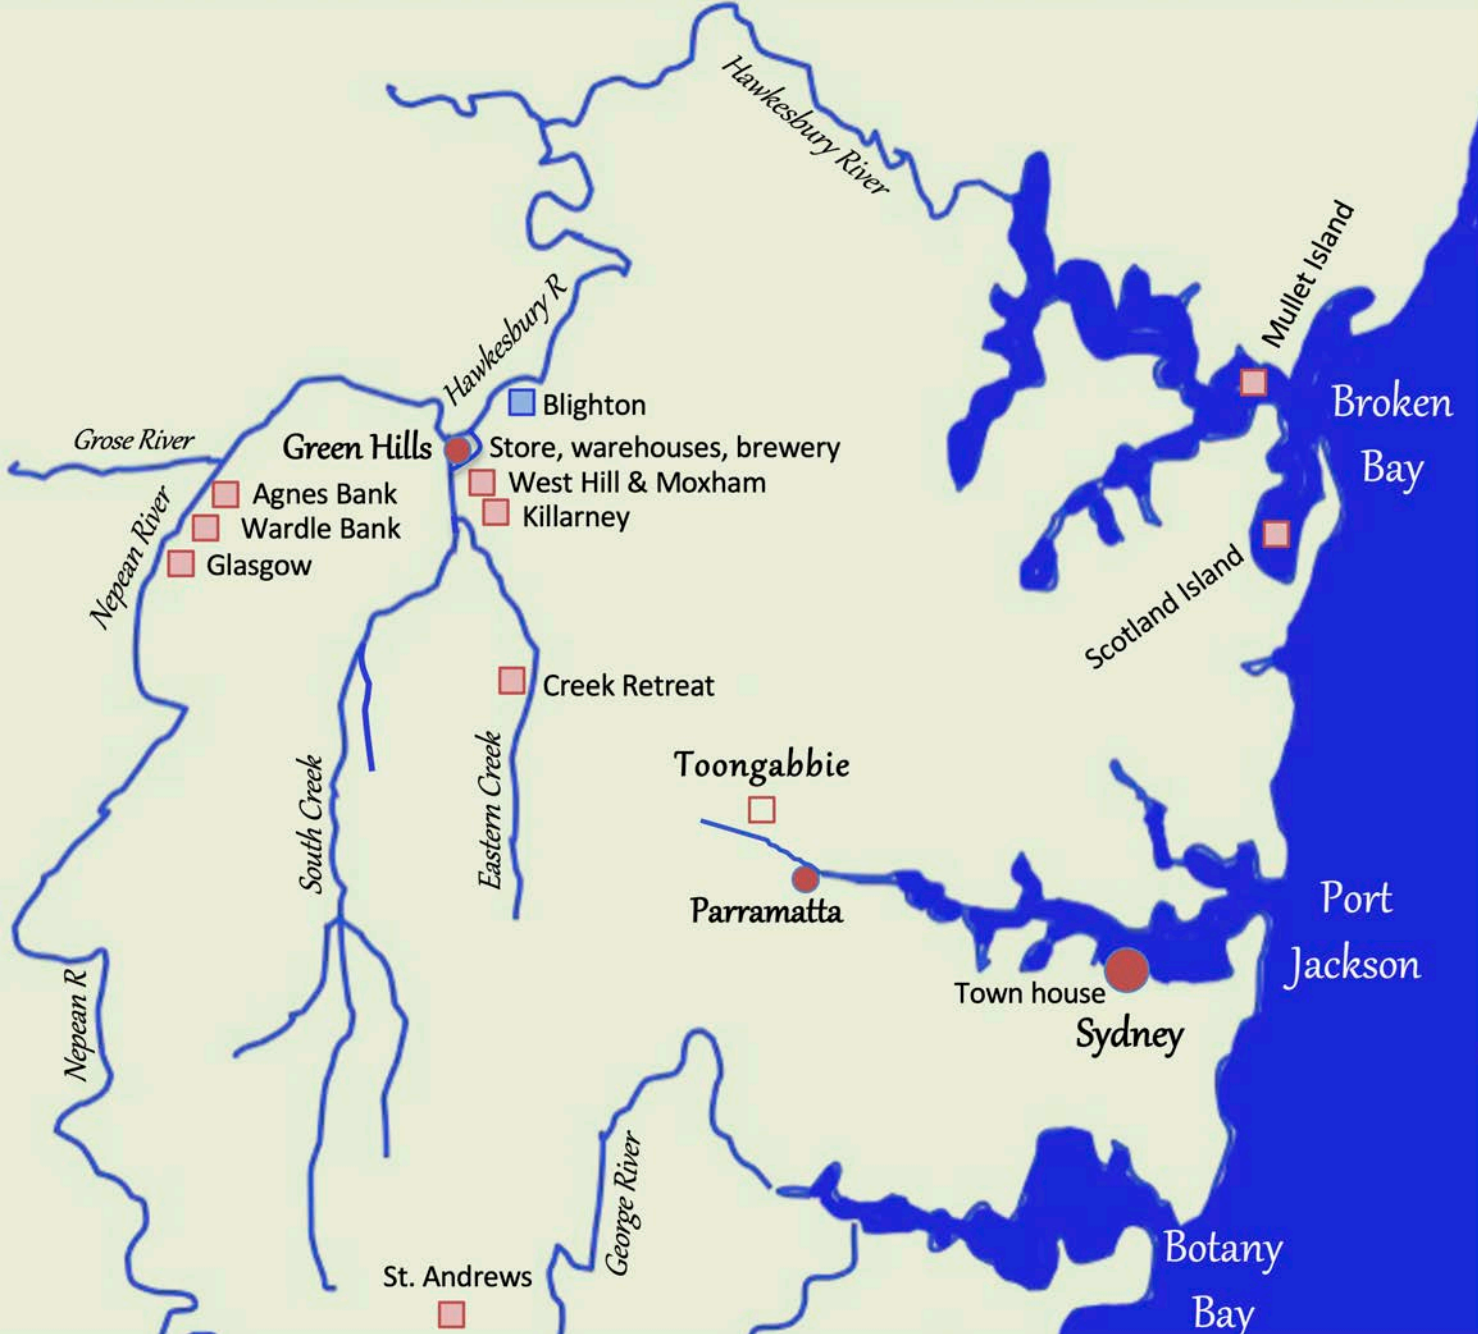

- First and foremost, Thompson was an honest, hardworking, ambitious, well-educated, approachable and generous young man. These were not common attributes in a remote penal colony where most men, convicts and soldiers, were illiterate and hardened.
- Andrew made friends easily and heeded the advice of his seniors.
- He was prepared to take responsibility and could be relied upon.
- Andrew was an outstanding policeman because people trusted him.
- Thompson was astute at business but not avaricious. Generous with his time, he was well-liked, and sought after, as an honest employer.
- During frequent Hawkesbury floods, Thompson showed leadership and bravery rescuing settlers by rowing small boats thru the night.
- A Bligh loyalist, he coordinated community petitions to the govt. and assisted many flood victims by providing loans on generous terms.

What should Andrew Thompson be most remembered for?

Thompson's Most Important Legacies

- As a policeman in the area for almost 15 years, Andrew Thompson worked tirelessly to improve the viability of the Hawkesbury settlers. The district was the “bread basket” of the colony and it was an era when a few trading monopolies dominated both the retailing of essential goods and the purchase of grain crops. Against the intrigues and nefarious dealings of the NSW Corps and John Macarthur, he strived to give the farmers a fair deal.
- Thompson played a leading role in organizing support for Governor Bligh among the Hawkesbury settlers. The 1808 Loyalty Address was signed (or marked) by 833 men – incredible support when you consider the lesser number of Corps soldiers in the colony then. It is entirely possible that the fright that this Address gave the Corps officers triggered the arrest of Bligh, the start of the Rum Rebellion.
- Thompson was a visionary in the development of Green Hills, and the largest private employer of men in the colony.

Annegret Hall congratulations on your Andrew Thompson book. My 3 x great grandfather, Edward Robinson, requested in his Will to be buried near to Andrew. Sadly this didn't happen. From Edward's Will "Do make and declare this my last Will and Testament in manner following (that is to say) First I direct that my Body may be decently interred in the Burial Ground of Windsor as near to the Body of the late Andrew Thompson as conveniently may be at the discretion of my Executors (friends Paul Bushell and Henry Baldwin) hereinafter named
